Alumnewsletter October 2004

Message from Richard Longhurst, Chair, IDS Alumni Association:

Dear Alumna/Alumnus

This is the first of what we hope will be a regular quarterly (September and March) newsletter addressed to more corporate aspects of the Alumni Association and to provide a forum for alumni to network more effectively about their work and to read a few news items from the Institute. As you will have heard from the new Director, Lawrence Haddad, the IDS is contributing significant support to the Association in the form of a two days a week post, which will be of great help in the administration of the Association. This newsletter however is devoted entirely to the forthcoming reunion, planned for 14-16 April 2005. The Reunion is our key activity, an enjoyable meeting of former colleagues and Institute faculty, facilitating networking and information sharing, and also providing for you an opportunity to both contribute your ideas and valuable accumulated experiences to the development debate in the Institute and get an understanding of some of the work going on in IDS.

First of all, please find attached a list of 'lost' alumni arranged by last known country of residence. I would be very grateful if you take a couple of minutes to look over this list and let us know any scrap of information that might help us track down these former colleagues. It does not have to be a current email address of course (although that would be most welcome) but anything that will help us pursue further their current location.

Second, I wanted to outline the proposed structure of the event, and in the December newsletter hope to be able to send out a near final programme. We are searching for a general theme with which you will feel comfortable, sufficiently general that nobody feels excluded, but reasonably precise so that some good discussion is generated.

The Reunion will start on the afternoon of Thursday April 14th with registration and welcomes. In the evening we hope to have a high-level speaker, then followed by drinks reception and dinner. On Friday 15th we hope to have morning and afternoon discussions on the selected theme with the Association General Meeting to follow. On Saturday 16th we will conclude these sessions. We will ensure that there will be ample time to network and relax, and to do business and socialise in the Institute, on the campus and in Brighton. Please let us know your needs and many thanks to all those who have already contacted us with their ideas.

I look forward to seeing you in April but meanwhile, please send in your news for our next Alumnewsletter which will go out at the end of the year. Contributions should be sent to alumni@ids.ac.uk by 20 December.

With best wishes

Richard Longhurst (DP 81)

Education journal prompts a positive response

The latest issue of id21's print journal insights education on gender equality in education as expressed by the third Millennium Development Goal is proving quite a hit. We wanted to share with you the response we've already had to this issue. It was extensively reviewed in Equals the newsletter for the DFID-funded Beyond Access: Gender, Education and Development programme. The reviewer commented on its "easily digestible format...each article provides clear, coherent discussion and also outlines steps for future action. The reader is left with a sense of the possibility for realisable change....I applaud the inspirational nature of the issue."

We are also delighted to hear that the writer of the Sites for Sore Eyes article (pointing readers to related websites) has been offered a job as a web editor as a result of her work for this issue. The online version of this issue of insights education is available at <http://www.id21.org/insights/insights-ed03/index.html> or IDS alumni can obtain a free subscription by emailing id21@ids.ac.uk

Gender myths

Much development work has been based on gender stereotypes – e.g. the idea that all farmers are men. In reaction, feminism has sometimes created counter stereotypes - such as the African woman farmer and her lazy husband. Such images have been hugely important in changing ideas about gender and channelling more resources to women. However, some images have been exaggerated and put beyond question, resulting in "gender myths". Gender myths are a powerful tool for positive change but also bring risks and dangers. This was the subject of a conference, held at IDS in 2003, and last month BRIDGE, IDS' gender information team, produced an 'In Brief' bulletin drawing together highlights with the aim of moving beyond simplistic stereotypes to better promote gender equality. Find this bulletin online at <http://www.bridge.ids.ac.uk/>. You are also invited to join the discussion on www.siyanda.org or by sending your comments to BRIDGE (in English, French, Spanish and Chinese).
