ZIDS Consultancy Report
On Assignment from the Ministry of Industry & Technology - Government of Zimbabwe
May 1989

Introduction to Volume II

The Ministry of Industry and Technology charged with the duty to direct the development of industry in Zimbabwe has as one of its objective the maximization of local ownership of industry in order to reduce the disbenefits associated with preponderant foreign control of economic activity in the country. To provide background to this effort the Ministry has assigned ZIDS to assess the extent of foreign ownership of capital in the country's manufacturing sector.

This report represents the results of such an assessment. The report is based on a survey of ownership data for some 667 companies in the manufacturing sector. The data, most of which came from records available from the Registrar of Companies, indicates that the 667 companies surveyed together have a total issued share capital of $546.1 million about 38% of which is foreign owned. The foreign ownership is distributed among 14 different countries with Britain and South Africa together controlling about 29% of total issued share capital or about 70% of all foreign owned capital. The rest of the countries each own sprinkles of the remaining 30%.

Local ownership is not as low as generally argued. Our estimates place this at about 58% of total manufacturing issued share capital held by the 667 companies. Our study excluded the metal goods sector. Inclusion of this sector would most likely increase the share of manufacturing sector capital held by locals.

Most of the capital in local hands is privately owned with only a small amount, $50.2 million dollars being public sector funds.

The report suffered significantly from lack of up-to-date data owing to inconsistent returns by companies to the Registrar of Companies. For this reason the sum total of our analysis is weakened by the fact that some data in the records are quite old and have had to be analysed together with more recent data.

This problem is exacerbated by the lack of detail in the records particularly in relation to nominee shareholderships. This form of share-holding is used deliberately by companies to conceal or disguise the exact nationality of ownership of capital.

Without details on this form of capital control it is difficult to make correct assessments of the ownership structure.

The work in the report should provide policy level orders of magnitude non-the-less.

Basis for Judgement on Ownership

In studying the ownership structure of the manufacturing sector we have sought first to identify a set of ownership indicators, on the basis of which judgement may be made on the ownership structure in question.

Criteria for Selecting Ownership Indicators

The study of the ownership structure of the manufacturing sector is not a value-free exercise intended for an open-ended provision of information. Rather it had to be an exercise within the context of a clear need to deal with two specific problems in the ownership of industrial capital in Zimbabwe.

First is the need to reduce the foreign ownership and control of capital in the manufacturing sector as is the case with the economy in general. Second is the need to effect a transition in the ownership structure towards a socialist structure of ownership.

The ownership indicators used in the study had in one way or the other to have a bearing on one or both of these two concerns. With this consideration in mind we selected the following as the main or key indicators of ownership.

1. The ratio of foreign capital to local capital in the sector.
This ratio is expressed with respect to total capital in the manufacturing sector, total capital in subsectors of the manufacturing sector, and with respect to total capital controlled by specific countries in the general sector and within subsectors of the manufacturing sector.

2. The ratio of state controlled capital to total and to foreign capital in the general manufacturing sector on the one hand and within subsectors of the manufacturing sector in particular. Here, state capitalism is seen as a necessary transition to a socialist ownership structure in a situation where a direct transition to a socialist structure of ownership is not yet feasible.
3. The number of foreign directorship in relation to local directorship of manufacturing companies. The ratio is expressed in terms of the general manufacturing sector and in terms of subsectors of the manufacturing sector.
Counts of foreign directorships by country of nationality are also given to enable judgement on the origins of influence and managerial control on the manufacturing sector.
4. Local private share of capital in relation to total capital in the manufacturing sector and the ratio of the same with respect to foreign ownership on the one hand and with relation to government ownership on the other hand.

Other Indicators of Ownership

The four key indicators given above have a biased bearing towards the rectification of the two anomalies specified earlier. For the study's results to be fully utilized, however, they must be applicable to a broader range of management considerations with regard to the manufacturing sector. For this reason a range of indicators over and above these four are analyzed in the report.

In the computerized data base submitted to the Ministry of Industry and Technology as part of this report, we have sought to enable a continuous updating of the four key indicators. This updating is necessary for building up historical data and for monitoring the behaviour of these key indicators overtime. More important, is the use of this continuous record in sensitivity tests of the indicators with respect to various industrial policy options. These tests are not possible in this report since it is based on static data.

The Ratio of Foreign Capital To Local Capital

Ownership patterns of issued share capital were analysed and the following results obtained:

For the 667 companies studied, the total issued share capital is estimated to be $546.1 million. Of the total issued share capital 38.1% ($207,967,890) is foreign owned, of which ($113.21 million) is 100% foreign owned. Issued Share Capital under 75% to 99% foreign ownership amounts to $16.27 million. This is 3.0% of total issued capital in the segment of the manufacturing sector surveyed. The rest of the capital under foreign ownership falls in the 51%, 74% foreign ownership category. Issued Share Capital in this category is 14.3% ($77.2 million) of total issued share capital.

A summary of these ownership structures is given in Table I. The foregoing analysis gives a global picture of the ownership structure for the whole manufacturing sector based on the 667 companies studied. The following section repeats the same analysis on a subsectorial basis.

FOREIGN OWNERSHIP SUMMARY FOR THE TOTAL MANUFACTURING SECTOR

Ownership Category	51-74%	75-99%	100%
Issued Share Capital	$77.2 m	$16.3 m	$113.2 m

The foregoing analysis gives a global picture of the ownership structure for the whole manufacturing sector based on the 667 companies studied. The following section repeats the same analysis on a subsectorial basis.

Capital Ownership By Country of Origin/Nationality of Shareholder

The following capital investment discussed above is owned by nationals of 14 different countries with South Africa and Britain together owning 29 percent of the total issued share capital. South Africa alone owns $37.9 million or 17% of total foreign capital in the portion of the manufacturing sector represented by the 667 companies studied. Britain owns $109.4 million or 20.0% of issued share capital of the same segment of the manufacturing sector, or 54% of total foreign capital.

Further details on the ownership of manufacturing capital by country are given in table II.

It can be seen from Table II that nine countries dominate the ownership of capital in the manufacturing sector with four of them controlling 94 percent of all the issued share capital and two of them - UK and South Africa controlling 65 percent of the foreign owned issued share capital.

Table III further details the same ownership structure as depicted in table II.

Ownership distribution by sector for leading countries is shown in Table V on page 8. Data given on the top row shows figures for the total country ownership of capital in the foreign capital category. The rest of the table breaks down the data to show the control of capital by individual countries in particular sectors of the manufacturing sector.

British capital dominates the rest of the world in all listed sectors. Its highest capital concentration in the manufacturing sector relative to other countries (in the subsectors listed) is in Printing, Mineral Processing, Transport & Equipment, and Furniture subsectors. Of the total British capital invested in the manufacturing sectors studied, the largest amount of capital $30 million is in the minerals subsector; over 30 million still is in the foodstuffs subsector and over $20 million is in the clothing subsector. Furniture is fourth with over $10 million.

UK capital in all listed sub-sectors of the manufacturing sector is twice the amount of South African capital which ranks second to UK in total capital control in the country's manufacturing sector. UK capital is also five times greater than than USA total capital in the manufacturing sub-sectors listed. In terms of size of capital relative to other countries South Africa has 17.88% control of capital in the total issued share capital in the sectors studied. Its largest control is in the Foodstuffs, Chemicals, and Furniture subsectors. In two of these sectors, foodstuffs and chemicals South Africa has greater capital control than the UK.

If we analysed foreign capital in view of total capital in the listed subsectors of the manufacturing sector the picture depicted in Table IV obtains;

Table IV shows the sectorial distribution of the total issued share capital for seven subsectors. The distribution is between foreign and local ownerships.

Table V on the next page gives a more detailed analysis of the capital distribution shown in Table IV. As this table shows present information leads one to conclude that there is generally greater local control of capital than foreign in the listed subsectors.

The only two sectors where foreign capital has majority control is Furniture and Clothing. In the rest of the sectors local capital has the majority control. Foreign control is depicted as being lowest in the Printing Subsector.

Column 2 in this table shows the magnitude of total sectorial issued share capital, column 3 as a percentage of total capital in the listed subsectors item 1 in row 2. Column 4 shows the magnitude of locally controlled issued share capital for each of the listed subsectors as a percentage of total issued share capital for all the listed subsectors. Column 6 is an expression of a similar measure of magnitude.

As a percentage of total listed issued share capital, foreign capital is notably significant only the Foodstuffs subsector with 17% control. The second largest concentration of foreign capital is strongest in the manufacture of foodstuffs, chemicals and minerals in descending order. This again is according to available information.

The density distribution of total capital among the listed sub-sector, can be ranked as follows: Foodstuffs, Minerals, Chemicals, Clothing, Printing, Transport and Furniture in descending order.

Analysis of Local Ownership: Government Involvement

Within the local ownership structure and in relation to the total issued share capital the magnitude of government involvement as measured by government control of issued share capital was also analysed. This included issued share capital directly owned by government and by its nominees.

Capital under direct government investment in the manufacturing sector excluding the metals subsector totals 25.9 million.

Total issued share capital under IDC, the Industrial Development Corporation is 24.3 million dollars. Thus total public sector funds invested in the listed subsectors of the manufacturing sector totals $50.2 million dollars.

This is about 15% of total local investment in the listed subsectors and 9 percent of total issued share capital in the listed subsectors.

Companies in which government has investment and those in which IDC has investment are listed below.

FURTHER ANALYSIS OF THE DISTRIBUTION OF ISSUED SHARE CAPITAL

The issued share capital analysis done above relates to the aggregate value of issued share capital. For a more detailed examination of the structure of ownership in the listed subsectors, issued share capital ownership was broken down into three categories: capital under 100% foreign ownership, capital under 75-99% foreign ownership and a third category analysing capital under 50-74% foreign ownership.

We list first companies falling under each of the above categories by country of foreign ownership. Then we present an analysis of issued share capital distribution for each category. This is done only for the top ten foreign countries with investment in Zimbabwe.

Total foreign capital under the 100% category amounts to 113.2 million. Of this amount, 49% is British, 30% is South African and 10% Bermudan. The rest of the countries have only 0.001% capital control in this category.

Of the 16.3 million total capital under the 75-90% category, 92% is American, 0.004% is South African, 6% is Dutch. United Kingdom has 2.0%.

It will be noticed that foreign country investments are concentrated in the 100% category and in the 50-74% category. The latter has $77.2 million worth of foreign capital from the top 10 countries. In this category, the United Kingdom, the Dutch and South Africans have the largest amounts of issued share capital.

A summary of issued share capital distribution under this line of analysis is given in Table VI below for the top six foreign countries with investments in Zimbabwe's manufacturing sector. Figures exclude the metals subsector of the manufacturing sector.
