LEARNING FROM CHANGE

Issues and Experiences in Participatory Monitoring and Evaluation

Edited by Marisol Estrella with Jutta Blauert, Dindo Campilan, John Gaventa, Julian Gonsalves, Irene Guijt, Deb Johnson and Roger Ricafort

INTERMEDIATE TECHNOLOGY PUBLICATIONS
INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT RESEARCH CENTRE
Contents

List of figures vi
List of tables vii
Glossary of acronyms and abbreviations x
Foreword xi
Preface xiv
Acknowledgements

Introduction

1 Learning from change
   MARISOL ESTRELLA 1

Part 1 Methodological innovations

2 Exploring visions: Self-monitoring and evaluation processes within the Nepal–UK Community Forestry Project
   CLARE HAMILTON, RAJ KUMAR RAI, RAM BAHADUR SHRESTHA, MAKSJA MAHARJAN, LEELA RASAILY and SIBONGILE HOOD 15

3 Seeking local indicators: Participatory stakeholder evaluation of farmer-to-farmer projects, Mexico
   JUTTA BLAUERT, with EDUARDO QUINTANAR 32

4 Adapting participatory methods to meet different stakeholder needs: Farmers’ experiments in Bolivia and Laos
   ANNA LAWRENCE, GRAHAM HAYLOR, CARLOS BARAHONA, ERIC MEUSCH 50

5 Experimenting with participatory monitoring in north-east Brazil: The case of AS-PTA’s Projeto Paraíba
   PABLO SIDERSKY and IRENE GUIJT 68

Part 2 Learning with communities

6 Strengthening citizen participation and democratization in the Philippines: ELF’s impact evaluation
   ROY V. ABES 83

7 Monitoring and evaluating local development through community participation: The experience of the Association of Indigenous Cabildos of Northern Cauca, Colombia
   RUBEN DARIO ESPINOSA ALZATE 95

8 Monitoring local development with communities: The SISDEL approach in Ecuador
   VICTOR HUGO TORRES D. 109
9 Strengthening citizen participation in evaluating community development: The case of the EZ/EC Learning Initiative in McDowell County, West Virginia
FRANCES PATTON RUTHERFORD

Part 3 Changing institutions

10 Growing from the grassroots: Building participatory planning, monitoring and evaluation methods in PARC
JANET SYMES and SA'ED JASSER

11 Getting the right end of the stick: Participatory monitoring and evaluation in an organizational context
PENELOPE WARD

12 Participatory monitoring and evaluation: Lessons and experiences from the National Poverty Alleviation Programme (NPAP) in Mongolia
DAVAA GOBISAIKHAN and ALEXANDER MENAMKART

13 Giving evaluation away: Challenges in a learning-based approach to institutional assessment
FRED CARDEN

Part 4 Conclusions

14 Conceptual tools for tracking change: Emerging issues and challenges
DINDO M. CAMPILAN

15 Methodological issues in participatory monitoring and evaluation
IRENE GUIJT

16 Laying the foundation: Capacity building for participatory monitoring and evaluation
DEB JOHNSON

17 Learning to change by learning from change: Going to scale with participatory monitoring and evaluation
JOHN GAVENITA and JUTTA BLAUERT

Bibliography and references

Notes

Author details

Index
As we embark on the twenty-first century, the words accountability, decentralization, democracy, diversity, ownership, participation and transparency are as common in development rhetoric as they are contravened in practice. Learning from Change shows how participatory monitoring and evaluation (PM&E) has the potential to make the rhetoric real. It establishes PM&E as one of the great remaining frontiers and challenges in development, with implications for learning and change which are at once methodological, institutional and personal.

Bringing together and analysing as it does varied experiences of innovators in South and North America, Africa and Asia, this book is a landmark. Its balanced, reflective and critical style cannot suppress the excitement. The discoveries of practitioners in different continents converge to suggest that where PM&E spreads and is sustained, much else can come to change: in the project cycle and activities; in the cultures and procedures of organizations; in professional norms and practices; in interpersonal relationships; and in gains to poor people. We have here seeds of a revolution in the theory and practice of development, with PM&E as both catalyst and clincher in reversing relationships of power, transforming institutions, and enhancing learning and adapting by stakeholders at all levels.

Learning from Change should be read by all development professionals, whether government officials, donors, academics, or others in civil society, who are concerned with improving performance to benefit the poor and powerless. It should inspire them to support pioneers of PM&E and to explore the potentials themselves. Those who ignore the themes and lessons of this book may be secure in their careers in the short term; and those in their fifties may even survive to a safe retirement. But they will be also be losers. For they will have missed not just the risks, but also the exhilaration and fulfilsments of surfing a wave of the future.

Robert Chambers
August 2000