THE RESEARCH REVIEW

During the brief and formative period in which the Research Review has been in existence, it has helped in making available information about some of the research being carried on at the Institute. In our endeavour to broaden the scope of this publication, we have included in this issue full-length articles to replace the familiar "leading article", found in the opening pages of previous issues. We continue to have research reports as well as library and museum reports, and as readers will notice, the Institute News has now been put at the end.

Without doubt, the progress we have made is due, in large measure, to the comments, criticisms and suggestions which interested readers have sent to us. We hope that such helpful comments will continue to come in to aid us towards the fulfilment of the purposes for which the Research Review was established.
